

Soundwave Ennis

Flokk

DESIGN FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT
OFFECCT - FLOKK, SWEDEN

Frank Lloyd Wright's mesmerizing pattern for the concrete blocks used to build the Ennis House, the last remaining textile block house, has served as futuristic backdrop in movies and made an imprint in history books. Now, the Ennis pattern has been applied on Soundwave®, Offecct's trademark acoustic panels made of recyclable moulded polyester, and will be used to improve the sound environments in past, present and future architecture.
